Transfer of Authority ceremony

Fort Wainwright Garrison Commander, Col. Ronald M. Johnson, presented Col. Leafaina Yahn, the 404th Army Field Support Brigade commander with a Directorate of Logistics plaque during a Transfer of Authority ceremony on post Tuesday. The ceremony signified logistics' transfer from the Installation Management Command to the U.S. Army Materiel Command. The transfer of authority is part of a larger program called the Materiel Enterprise alignment, The ME brings together organizations that develop, acquire, and sustain materiel to enhance accountability, responsibility, and facilitate better decisions at all levels. "I am confident that this transition will be transparent to our senior commanders and our customers." Mary Kay, logistics director said. "The mission doesn't stop." Johnson said. "No matter what we call you, you're still a part of 'Team Wainwright' and what makes DOL great are the people." (Photo by Brian Schlumbohm/Fort Wainwright PAO)

Stryker brigade deputy commander - focus on Arctic training

The Soldiers of the 75th Ranger Regiment are recognized as some of the best trained, experienced and lethal troops. Their precision night raids into enemy territories and their ability to rapidly deploy make them one of the most effective and largest special operations elements in the Army.

The commander of the 1st Stryker Brigade Combat Team, 25th Infantry Division, Col. Brian Reed and his 4,000-Soldier brigade welcomed a former member of the elite team into their ranks earlier this summer, in August 2012.

Lt. Col. William Gottmeier, a West Point graduate and the new deputy commanding officer for the 1-25th SBCT, plans to combine what he learned while serving as the 75th Ranger Regiment's Strategic Plans and Requirements officer and their chief of operations in Operation Enduring Freedom along with his experiences in U.S. Army Alaska strategic planning and operations, in an effort to help Reed put the arctic back into the Arctic Wolves.

"Some of the deployment requirements to Afghanistan or Iraq are coming off our plates and allowing us to refocus on some of the tasks that we haven't looked at in a long time that are also a part of our mission essential tasks," Gottmeier said. "Perfecting the basics successfully and having highly trained teams that can shoot, move and communicate are the building blocks to any successful combat formation."

As the deputy commander for the Alaska-based Stryker unit, Gottmeier, among other things, is directly responsible for getting the unit back to the basics by overseeing both arctic and mountain training.

He plans to accomplish this mission by maximizing the Soldiers' exposure to some of Alaska's most prominent training environments like the Black Rapids Training Area.

Home to the Northern Warfare Training Center, Black Rapids includes some of the most challenging arctic, sub-arctic and mountain environments available to Soldiers.

"NWTC is a world class asset that we need to tap into... It's the only one like it in the Army," the Sandy Hook, Conn. native said.

In a state where temperatures can go from 50 degrees one day to below zero the next, Gottmeier said he is focused on "building the training path to get the unit on an arctic leaders certification program where they will be able to train in the extreme temperatures and survive and not just survive, but also succeed and accomplish missions."

Some of the specific courses Gottmeier plans to utilize include but are not limited to the basic mountaineering course, mountain warfare class and cold weather leader's course.

"We could go anywhere in the world and we have to be prepared," he said. "These skills are applicable and it's training the Army has gotten away from for over a decade as a matter of necessity for units to focus on multiple deployments," he said.

Getting a brigade with approximately 4,000 Soldiers, most of which are new to the unit or the Army, 'winterized' and combat ready is a daunting task for any individual, but it's Gottmeier's impressive history as an Army leader that has

Safety Day is coming: Community offers tools to thrive during Alaskan winters

Robert Tanner,
Installation safety

Are you new to the area? Not sure what to do this winter? Do you want to know how to make it through the winter Safe and come out Sane? Then come out and join the Installation Safety Office at the Last Frontier Community Activity Center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 30 to celebrate the third annual Safe-n-Sane Safety Day. You will learn just what you need to do to make it through the long, cold Alaska winters. From winter barbecue tips to where to go to see the symphony in Fairbanks, Safe-n-Sane 2012 will have it.

There will be a multitude of organizations providing information on where to go, what to do and what to get to keep you safe and busy throughout the winter. The Fairbanks Convention and Visitors Bureau is sponsoring many organizations from the community to tell you what there is to do in the community in spite of the cold.

From the Fairbanks Convention and Visitors Bureau:

- Native Alaskan dance demonstrations at 11:30 a.m., 1:30, and 3:30 p.m. presented by Alaska Northern Lights Tours;
- Sled dogs and puppies the kids can pet and get their picture taken on an authentic dog sled from Sirius Sled Dogs;
- UAF Athletic Department will present information on sporting events at UAF during the winter;

- Representatives from Fairbanks Concert Association, Fairbanks Symphony Association, and Friends of Creamers Field will be on site to discuss events throughout the winter.

Fort Wainwright organizations planning to join Safe-n-Sane include:

- North Haven Communities; NHC staffers will be there to answer questions you might have about on-post housing.
- Fort Wainwright American Red Cross will present a hypothermia demo, and CPR demo and practice
- Occupational Health and Industrial Hygiene - Health Promotion, Ergonomics and lifting techniques
- Bassett Army Community Hospital will provide flu shots demonstration proper procedures to barbecue in the winter safely.

Last but not least, four-time winner of the 1,049 mile Iditarod, Jeff King will visit from noon to 3 p.m. for meet and greet. Stop by to have your picture taken with the “Winningest Musher in the World.” Talk to him about his adventures and see some of his future sled dogs (more puppies).

For more information or to learn how your organization can participate in Safe-N-Sane Safety Day, check with your safety officer or call 353-7085.

ICE: A hot tool for feedback, suggestions and changes

Allen Shaw, Fort Wainwright PAO

The Fort Wainwright Interactive Customer Evaluation system is a tool used by leadership to improve garrison programs by providing a glimpse into service performance from our customer's perspective.

Although many people know if they have difficulties at the dining facility, youth services, housing or any of the customer-based facilities or services, they can easily report it through an ICE comment. In most cases people who have suggestions choose to remain anonymous, “Which is alright, the system is designed to honor confidentiality and those comments are taken just as seriously,” said Sonja Taylor, customer evaluation analyst, Directorate of Plans, Analysis and Integration. “We do ask that you are mindful of how it is written so the manager has a clear picture and is able to understand the problem since it will be difficult to follow-up with the customer.”

Fortunately, Taylor said, most of the comments are positive and recognize a job well done which is a great reflection on the workforce. “One of the most exciting and useful aspects of the ICE comment program is the Site Suggestions, Questions and Comments located at the bottom of the home page.”

“Fort Wainwright residents have voiced valid concerns and great ideas, that have dramatically improved safety, quality-of-life and overall customer service,” said Taylor. Improvements to operating hours for facilities, moving a school bus stop to reduce a safety hazard and providing public transportation on post are only a few of the positive changes suggested through ICE.

Taylor said, “It’s any easy way for people to get involved and be part of the team that can make a difference.”

Visit www.wainwright.army.mil and look for the blue box at the bottom, right side of the page. Click on the blue box entitled “ICE.” That will lead to the home page. Scroll to the bottom of the page. Click on the blue link, “Site Suggestions, Questions and Comments.” A screen will pop up with fill-in boxes for the topic-subject category, comments and suggestions (up to 4,000 characters) and optional blocks for name, phone and email; if the person submitting the suggestion wants to remain in the loop.

“It’s one of the best, most convenient and cost-effective ways to make things better,” Taylor said, “It’s what our customers want, it’s supported by leadership and suggestions from the people who use the services have a great opportunity to make the community better.”

For more information on ICE or how to make a suggestion, call Taylor at 353-9721 or email at Sonja.m.taylor4.civ@mail.mil.

Holly Days Bazaar next weekend

Trish Muntean, Fort
Wainwright PAO

Those wanting to do some one-stop holiday shopping for unique gifts will have the opportunity Oct. 19 and 20 at the Holly Days bazaar on Fort Wainwright. This 30th annual event, sponsored by the Fort Wainwright Community Spouses Club, will be at the Physical Fitness Center on Friday from 4 to 8 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

This event, which requires about 200 volunteers to pull it all together, is the primary fundraiser for the spouses club and money earned goes to scholarships and grants given in the spring. Although it is no easy task, it is worth the efforts, said Katrina Sczesny, event chair. Last year the CSC awarded over $16,400 in local welfare grants and scholarships. This year's goal is $25,000.

In addition to the 92 vendors who have bought a space to display their wares (which is the limit) the CSC also rented an extra 10 booths, in the lobby area to host the tables for food sold by non-profit organizations at the bazaar. This privilege costs $50 per booth and is non-refundable. There will be an additional charge for

Kim Kellum, who paints a variety of decorative items for the home, was one of the many military spouses who participated as a vendor during the Fort Wainwright Community Spouses Club Holly Days Bazaar, October 2010. groups that do not have their own tables, and a limited amount of tables are available.

If your group was lucky enough to get space for a food table, Sczesny reminds you that a food handler's card and a permit from Preventative Medicine are required and it is your responsibility to get the required paperwork. It will also be up to each group to ensure that all the requirements for handling food are met. The CSC will obtain a blanket garrison approval for the fundraisers.

Although the bazaar is what the CSC is best known for, it is not the only activity scheduled for the year, said Guin Lewis, CSC president.

The CSC has had a luncheon and a few other activities so far this year and after the bazaar has several events planned to get out of the house and chase the winter blues away, including a holiday party with cookie exchange, tubing on Birch Hill and bowling.

If you would like to join the fun, email guinlewis@gmail.com for more information.

“We are a very diverse group of spouses,” said Lewis. “We have a lot of fun. It is a great way for spouses to meet each other and make new friends.”

Army Voting Assistance Program

Maj. Gen. Michael X. Garrett,
U.S. Army Alaska (commanding general)

Voting is a privilege we as citizens enjoy and defend as Soldiers in the United States Army. Therefore, it is our duty and responsibility to exercise this privilege and ensure all Army personnel are also equipped to exercise this privilege.

As the 2012 Presidential Election draws near on November 6, participation and vigilance are increasingly more important to ensure we have a successful voting assistance program. Commanders at every level must ensure the proper resources are allocated in order to create a strong foundation for voting assistance programs across U.S. Army Alaska.

Capable and quality Unit Voting Assistance Officers (UVAOs) are integral for the success of unit voting assistance programs. Commanders must appoint a UVAO for 25 or more permanently assigned personnel in the unit and an additional UVAO for each additional 50 personnel above the 25 member base.

Unit Voting Assistance Officers are the subject matter experts on the Federal Voting Assistance Program and the commander's representative to all personnel. Commanders should utilize their UVAOs as an asset to reach eligible voters in their organization and ensure they have the resources necessary to vote.

The majority of our Soldiers use the absentee ballot to vote. Therefore, it is necessary for each Soldier to account for postal transit time from their duty station to their local election office.

The Federal Write-in Absentee Ballot (FWAB) is available online at <https://www.fvap.gov>. The completed FWAB must be received by the local election office before the deadline established by their state. Unit Voting Assistance Officers have access to mail-in deadlines for all states and territories. Ensure your Soldiers know who their UVAOs are and allow sufficient time for these officers to execute their duties.

Thank you for all your support and dedication to the USARAK Voting Assistance Program. Please direct any voting questions or inquiries to the USARAK Voting Assistance Office in USARAK G-1 at 384-1042.

Maj. Gen. Michael X. Garrett

Real love doesn't hurt

Staff report,
Fort Wainwright PAO

If you're walking on egg shells wondering what you did that set your domestic partner off and trying to avoid that behavior so you don't get hurt again, you should know you're not alone and help is a simple phone call away.

October is Domestic Abuse Awareness Month, an annual, national recognition that domestic abuse does exist and to educate the public what we as a nation can do to prevent it from occurring, said Betty McCain, Fort Wainwright Family Advocacy Program manager.

So what defines an abusive relationship? "Abuse is physical, sexual, emotional, economic or psychological actions or threats of actions that influence another person. This includes any behaviors that frighten, intimidate, terrorize, manipulate, hurt, humiliate, blame, injure or wound someone," according to the National Domestic Violence Hotline website at www.thehotline.org.

"Domestic violence can happen to anyone of any race, age, sexual orientation, religion or gender. It can happen to couples who are married, living together or who are dating. Domestic violence affects people of all socioeconomic backgrounds and education levels."

According to a survey done by the Council on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault, 49.5 percent of adult women in Fairbanks have experienced intimate partner violence in their lifetime, with: 30.2 percent experiencing threats of physical violence and 48.8 percent experiencing physical violence.

In the past year 10.8 percent of adult women experienced intimate partner violence, with 6.8 percent experiencing threats of physical violence and 10.3 percent experiencing physical violence.

Sadly, the abuse is not unheard of on military installations either. The Fort Wainwright FAP receives about two reports of incidents of domestic abuse each week, McCain said. And although not all incident reports are substantiated, public awareness of the signs of domestic abuse and reporting it help in its prevention. For those cases that are substantiated, alcohol has frequently contributed to the problem.

If abuse is substantiated, the offender and victim are offered treatment plans that may include individual and or marriage counseling, parenting education, referral to Alcohol, Substance Abuse Program and referrals to the new parent support program. The FAP at Fort Wainwright also offers training as part of the prevention plan such as 24/7 Dad, Scream-Free Marriage and Infant Massage. McCain can be reached at 353-7317.

In addition, the Child and Family Assistance Center may be able to offer advice and assistance. For more information or to make an appointment, call 361-6059.

Help is also available via the National Domestic Violence Hotline, (800) 799-7223, or (800) 799-SAFE.

Job fair offers one-stop shop of employment opportunities, resources

Staff report, Fort Wainwright PAO

Are you a Soldier transitioning from active duty and looking for your next job? A veteran? Or a Family member wanting to continue your career? Army Career and Alumni Program and Army Community Service offices support hundreds of job fairs on or near installations every year. The Fort Wainwright job fair is set for Oct. 18 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Last Frontier Community Activity Center.

U.S. Army-level ACS and ACAP received support from Hiring our Heroes, a U.S. Chamber of Commerce program. H2H job fairs bring together a range of organizations--including private industry, the Department of Labor, the Veterans Administration, the Small Business Administration and state workforce commissions--all focused on connecting transitioning Soldiers and vets with employment opportunities. A Hero 2 Hired website for all military and veterans helps transitioning personnel connect with 50,000 employers who have vowed to employ them with on-site and virtual, online employment fairs.

Employers from the public sectors, business and industry include: administration, business management, construction, education, engineering, finance, forestry, investment, commissioned sales, heating and cooling, resource management, mechanics, public service, security and more.

Assistance programs will have representatives available from Helmets to Hardhats - Alaska Job Center Network, Veterans Affairs, the education office, ACAP and ACS.

In addition to active military personnel, spouses, retirees and transitioning Soldiers are encouraged to attend as well. Visitors who plan to attend the job fair should stop at the visitor center for a pass. Be prepared to show your license, registration and proof of insurance. All adults must have a valid photo ID card.

To find out about other events or all the services ACAP offers, visit the ACAP website at www.acap.army.mil/ or contact an ACAP center at www.acap.army.mil/acap-centers.aspx.htm or call 353-2113.

One hellish day for 1st Stryker Brigade, 25th Infantry Division leaders

Story and photos by
Sgt. Michael Blalack,
1-25th SBCT PAO

The officers and senior non-commissioned officers of the Brigade Troops Battalion, 1st Stryker Brigade Combat Team, 25th Infantry Division took a break from answering emails, returning phone calls, sitting through meetings, and the repetitive day-to-day business of running a Stryker brigade to spend a grueling eight hours running, crawling, marching, climbing and even swimming in a competitive event aptly christened Operation Tour de Hell, Sept. 21.

Most of the participants in the event hold staff, command, or operations positions, meaning the majority of their time is spent behind a desk.

"If it wasn't for this I'd be sitting in front of a computer all day," Capt. Angela Chipman, the brigade civil affairs officer said. "This is a great opportunity to get out, interact, joke around and have some fun."

"This is the first time since getting back from deployment I've really gotten out of the office," Master Sgt. Lamont Williams, the brigade S4 NCOIC said. "I usually spend all day answering emails and giving logistical advice to battalion and company commanders and executive officers."

The operation started at 6:30 a.m. in front of battalion headquarters when teams competed, to see could do the most pushups and sit-ups in a timed event. Then they shouldered their ruck sacks and started an eight mile foot march with various events along the way that tested their physical endurance and mastery of basic warrior tasks.

"The BTB is a unique organization," Lt. Col. Michael Braun, commander of the BTB said. "It's made up of five companies that do entirely different jobs. So this was a great time to come together and get a little mud on the uniform, get a little dirty, a little sweaty, but at the same time have some fun."

Mud and sweat were a large part of the day as the teams assaulted an obstacle course, flipped tires, and pushed a Humvee, marching across Fort Wainwright from one event to the next.

Interspersed between the physical challenges were basic tasks that all Soldiers learn early in their careers including assembling stripped weapons, assembling and operating a radio, and calling for artillery and medevac.

After a short ride in a Chinook helicopter, there were bench presses and an equipment swim at the Melaven Gym then a final sprint back to battalion headquarters.

The participants finished up the day by meeting up for a BBQ.

"The BBQ was what I was really looking forward to...that's the only reason I did this," joked Chief Warrant Officer 2 Edgar Enriquez, the Brigade Tactical Operations Officer.

As Soldiers gain rank they are frequently moved into positions where their experience can be put to use in the planning and coordinating phase of training events.

This is usually done from behind a desk and in a conference room, well out of the mud and grime where the actual training occurs – a place where many of these Soldiers still feel more at home.

Capt. Joshua Withington, commander of the Brigade Headquarters Company, who took a day off of leave to participate in the event, summed up the sentiment that had been expressed repeatedly throughout the day.

"All of us would rather be doing this, out here challenging ourselves and each other, than sitting in the office," he said.

Warrant Officer Alimameh Fatty, Human Resources Technician for the 1st Stryker Brigade Combat Team, 25th Infantry Division, crawls under barbed wire at Fort Wainwright's obstacle course during the Brigade Troops Battalion's 'Operation Tour de Hell' Sept 21. The event was an eight-hour competitive ordeal that tested the unit's leadership in basic warrior tasks and physical endurance.

Capt. Joshua Withington, commander of Headquarters Company, 1st Stryker Brigade Combat Team, 25th Infantry Division, crawls across the high beam at Fort Wainwright's obstacle course during the Brigade Troops Battalion's 'Operation Tour de Hell' on Sept 21. The event was an eight-hour competitive ordeal that tested the unit's leadership in basic warrior tasks and physical endurance.

Command Sgt. Maj. Sherwood Gatts, CSM of the Brigade Troops Battalion, 1st Stryker Brigade Combat Team, 25th Infantry Division, flips a tire during the Brigade Troops Battalion's 'Operation Tour de Hell' on 21 Sept. at Fort Wainwright, Alaska. The event was an eight-hour competitive ordeal that tested the unit's leadership in basic warrior tasks and physical endurance.

Spartans: Afghanistan mission ends, sacrifices remembered the Spartan and Rakkasan brigades.

The TOA marks the official end of the Spartans' mission in Afghanistan. It is also the end of the brigade's second deployment in support of Operation Enduring Freedom.

U.S. Army Maj. Gen. William Mayville, Regional Command East and Combined Joint Task Force-1 commanding general, praised the effort and commitment the Spartan Soldiers displayed during its tour in Afghanistan.

"This incredible team has been asked to some extraordinary tasks," Mayville said. "Everything I've ever asked of this brigade and leadership, they've delivered. I couldn't be more proud."

Mayville recognized the sacrifices the Spartans had made during the deployment.

"It did not come without sacrifice and we mourn their losses for those we had to send home."

Mayville welcomed the Rakkasans, whom he said were no strangers to Afghanistan.

U.S. Army Col. Morris Goins, Task Force Spartan commander, cited the accomplishments of the Afghan counterparts – accomplishments that did not come easily.

"The Afghans lost several officers and several Soldiers along the way and we, Task Force Spartan, lost several paratroopers as well," Goins said. "To the Families and friends of our fallen, I will leave you with these words:

"It is not why they died or how they died. It's all about what they stood for and how they lived. When you think of them often, think of them with a smile because that's what they deserve and that's they would have wanted."

Goins then thanked the Afghan counterparts, contractors and Family members.

"Ten months ago, I stood in this spot and told everyone the Spartans would do what we did in the battle of Thermopylae; we would make a difference. From Command Sgt. Maj. Gardner and I, to the Spartans and paratroopers of Task Force 4-25: you have proven that you know your profession. Thank you."

Half-century-old record finally broken: That's what I'm talking about

Allen Shaw,
Fort Wainwright PAO

Arguably one of the greatest National Football League players of all time was joined in the record books by New Orleans Saints quarterback Drew Brees in Sunday's game against the San Diego Chargers. Brees eclipsed the mark set by Johnny Unitas by throwing a touchdown pass in 48 straight games. Unitas set the record with 47 consecutive TD passes from 1956 to 1960.

Brees threw a 40-yarder to Devery Henderson who took it to the end zone. The New Orleans quarterback passed for a total of 370 yards and four touchdowns, as the Saints marched over the Chargers, 31-24. Johnny Unitas' son Joe was there to watch the history making play, as well as suspending head coach Sean Peyton, who is serving a suspension in connection with the NFL's bounty investigation.

In other games played around the league, the St. Louis Rams ended the Arizona Cardinal four-game winning streak, beating them 17-3.

The Miami Dolphins finished strong in a tightly contested game against the Cincinnati Bengals, 17-13, the Baltimore Raven defense picked apart the Kansas City offense as the Chiefs fell, 9-6 and the Indianapolis Colts stunned the Green Bay Packers, 30-27. Colt rookie quarterback and first-round draft choice, Andrew Luck threw for 362 yards and two touchdowns, while Packer QB Aaron Rodgers tossed three TD passes and logged 243 yards in the air, in a losing effort. The Colts dedicated the game to head coach, Chuck Pagano, who is in the hospital undergoing treatment for recently-diagnosed leukemia. Even the opposition players were wearing t-shirts and stickers that read "I am ChuckStrong" in support of the coach and a blood drive. The NFL community - that's what I'm talking about.

The New York Giants stomped the Cleveland Browns 41-27, Pittsburgh stole one from Philadelphia as the Steelers rallied back to beat the Eagles 16-14 and the Atlanta Falcons went to five wins and no losses with a 24-17 victory over the Washington Redskins.

Rookie quarterback Russell Wilson led the Seattle Seahawks to a 16-12 win over the Carolina Panthers, the Chicago Bears crushed the Jacksonville Jaguars 41-3 and the Minnesota Vikings dropped Thor's hammer on the Tennessee Titans, 30-7. On Monday night the Houston Texans grounded the New York Jets, 23-17.

The game is once again secondary, because it is just that, a game. There are things surrounding the sport that often remind us of that and we need to be thankful to have an opportunity to enjoy the thrill, rivalry and competition of our favorite teams and players. But let us no lose sight of coaches and players who are diagnosed with life-threatening illnesses and those who rally around in support. Let us not forget the Crucial Catch campaign with pink being worn throughout the league this month to bring awareness to breast cancer and the need for early detection.

We also say adios to the great fearless defensive Detroit Lion lineman turned actor, Alex Karras - who played Mongo in the movie Blazing Saddles. Karras died earlier this week at the age of 77. We pay tribute and he will be remembered for giving so much to the game.

As for the post pigskin prognosticators, the bros topped everyone. Browbrose Salsa and Jones Bros each posted 11 wins, three losses to boost them up the overall ladder. Brain, Bear and Tate had 10 and four, but Brain still has a tight grip on the lead. A-Team had a nine-and-five record, while Urbi got eight wins and six losses.

Worst and first are only separated by seven games so each week the pickers have to bring it. That's what I'm talking about.

Gottmeier: Unit fully equipped by summer

Reed and the rest of the 1-25th SBCT on track to maintaining their dominance as one of the Army's elite and most versatile, arctic Stryker elements.

"Lt. Col. Gottmeier is a perfect fit for the Brigade and is an enormous asset," Reed said. "He is professional; a standard based, and leads by example. I am very excited to have him and his Family as part of the Arctic Wolves team and his experience and leadership will make us a better brigade."

In addition to three deployments with the 75th Ranger Regiment and a stint with USARAK, Gottmeier has led elements from the 10th Mountain Division, the 5th Ranger Training Battalion and 1st Cavalry Division.

"I have been lucky enough to be in a variety of infantry units; I have been in heavy, light and airborne ranger assignments, so there is a wealth of experience on the different means to get the infantrymen to the fight that I can bring to the 1-25th SBCT," Gottmeier said.

Gottmeier plans to work with the Arctic Wolves' commander to have the unit fully equipped and trained by the upcoming summer.

"By next summer the unit will have battalions and companies that have all their essential men, weapons and equipment and are fully trained on their mission-essential tasks," Gottmeier said.

In addition to individual skills, he plans to employ and exploit the vast capabilities of the unit's Stryker vehicles.

"Strykers are the median force between light and heavy and have really good tactical and strategic mobility," Gottmeier said. "A

Stryker can move large distances and that's what makes the Stryker formation so great and such a versatile platform compared to a light or airborne formation which are often limited to how they can move around the battlefield. We plan to use this asset to our advantage and maximize our training."

Having his men trained and prepared for the mission ahead is an area he said he takes great pride in but it's not just the training that has this expert infantryman excited.

The father of two said he is "happy to be back in a tactical unit with Soldiers that I can talk to and be a part of their career."

The mission for the deputy commander is strenuous and extremely detailed but it's a mission he's not tackling alone.

When the DCO isn't outlining training plans, assisting the commander or getting to know the Soldiers better he will be spending time with his Family exploring the Last Frontier.

Standing beside Gottmeier is his wife of 17 years, Heather, daughter Brooke and son Will.

He said they are just as excited to be here as he is.

Though he admits that getting the unit where it needs to be will have its challenges, Gottmeier said he is living out his dream and doing exactly what he always wanted to do.

"I always wanted to be in the military. When I was a little kid I was always running around playing guns and I wanted to be on America's side, not the bad guy's side," Gottmeier said. "I'm excited to be here and I am very impressed with where this brigade is."

Motorcycle riding prohibited on post Road conditions change

Staff report, Garrison PAO

Road conditions on Fort Wainwright will be changed from Green to Amber no later than Monday. The road conditions may be changed prior to Oct. 14 if we get a sticking snowfall or freezing rain before then, according to the Directorate of Emergency Services.

This change is being made to prevent the confusion that usually results when the road conditions are changed and persons who commute using motorcycles are turned around at the gates.

Road conditions defined:

- A green classification means ideal road, visibility and temperature conditions exist. Roads are dry or not slippery and drivers can see what's happening ahead of and behind them.
- When conditions deteriorate so that they are no longer ideal, we go to the amber classification. Amber indicates hazardous road conditions. Motorcycles are prohibited from installation roads. Drivers can expect increased driving times and snow or ice on the roads.
- Red conditions are such that driving is dangerous and visibility is very poor. Under red conditions, only mission-essential government vehicles will be driven on post, and the dispatches will be noted "mission essential." Authorization for driving government-owned vehicles under red conditions lies at the battalion-commander and division-chief level.

- Black road conditions mean only emergency vehicles should be on the roads, authorized by brigade commanders or directors. We also recommend that privately owned vehicles not be operated under these conditions.

The policy applies to government-owned vehicles only; you can still continue to drive your POVs. It is, however, a good guide to follow with POVs. If roads are considered hazardous, slow down. Our intersections here get slick every winter. One vehicle sliding out of control can result in a chain reaction that ends up damaging two or three or more other vehicles.

Road condition and reporting status updates will be posted to the 353-INFO recording, on Nixle (text 99703 to 88877) or on www.nixle.com, on the Road Conditions and Reporting Status page at www.wainwright.army.mil and on Fort Wainwright's official Facebook page, like: fortwainwrightpao.
